Group 13 - Summary

2 attempts have been completed

Question 1

Feedback for Szymon

Collapse Responses

- Szymon has been an exceptional team member. Their work on the models was a significant contribution, resulting in a usable model that provided a strong foundation for our project.

  One of their standout strengths is their remarkable ability to manage different tasks and timings. Even with my own admittedly difficult working style, we encountered no issues whatsoever in our collaboration, which speaks volumes about their adaptability and organizational skills.

  They consistently participated actively in meetings and group work, and their communication and collaboration were always effective and professional. The division of work felt fair, and they consistently completed their tasks on time and to a high standard.

  If there's one area for improvement, it would be to stress a bit less. However, this is significantly balanced by my own tendency not to stress, making for a surprisingly effective dynamic between us.

  Overall, Szymon has shown tremendous strength and has been a pleasure to work with.

- Szymon

Question 2

Feedback for Mohammadali

Collapse Responses

- Mohammadali has been a great person to work with, and the positive team "vibes" were definitely there when collaborating. While he didn't always show a lot of initiative initially, once given a task, he consistently delivered and tried his best.

  His contributions were valuable, and his willingness to put in the effort once engaged was evident. Overall, I would absolutely work with him again.

- You were one of the quiet strengths of this team. Always present, always dependable, and always getting your tasks done without making a fuss. There's something really valuable about someone who brings stability and calm into a group — and that's exactly what you did.

  I really enjoyed working with you. You took feedback seriously, improved where it was needed, and made collaboration feel smooth and low-stress. I'd happily team up with you again anytime. You don't need to be loud to make an impact — and you've proven that.

Question 3

Feedback for Hristiyan

Collapse Responses

- You really stepped up to the mark. Without you, this project would not have succeeded — and I mean that sincerely. I genuinely enjoyed working with you and hope I get the chance to do it again in the future, whether in a school project or something of our own.

  Even though our working styles are completely different, we had no trouble syncing up. To be honest, that was one of my biggest concerns going into this block — but you made it easy. Your work was always at the highest standard, and you never hesitated to take on tasks that were left unfinished by Aristotelis. You've shown reliability, skill, and real team spirit. Please keep going — don't stop pushing forward.

Question 4

Feedback for Aristotelis

Collapse Responses

- Unfortunately, my experience working with Aristotelis on this team assignment was not positive. Despite efforts to simplify tasks and provide clear guidance, he failed to deliver on any of the assigned responsibilities. The work, when submitted, was consistently of the lowest quality, and often accompanied by unconvincing excuses.
  Perhaps most concerning was his complete disengagement once confronted about his lack of contribution. He ceased all communication and participation with the team.
  Given these significant issues, I cannot recommend Aristotelis for future team assignments. It's impossible to provide constructive feedback when a team member completely withdraws and refuses to engage in the work.

- There is very little I can add beyond what was said in the previous feedback, except to confirm that none of it has changed. You did not attend any meetings after June 10 and were completely absent from any group activity from that point on. During the entire block, you made no effort to engage with the team, sit with us during DataLab sessions (apart from the initial idea generation), or contribute in a way that supported our progress.

  Despite the feedback you received earlier and the meeting with Margot and Avril on June 17, where you said you wanted to help with the final presentation, you did not follow through. You missed the standup the very next day and did not reach out to anyone for clarification or instructions.

  I genuinely tried to include you, to make space for you in the team, and to offer support if needed. But at no point did I feel that you were actually part of this team, and in the end, there was no meaningful contribution from your side. I hope you take this feedback seriously and reflect on what it means to be part of a collaborative project.

Question 5

If applicable, please briefly reflect on how the train strikes affected your teamwork and final results.

Collapse Responses

- They did not affect them. We could communicate at all times online.
- Technically, Aristotelis was affected by train strikes, but overall, he did not contribute at all. Thus, the team was not affected by this event.
